

THE AUSTRALIAN INSTITUTE OF MANAGEMENT WELCOMES NEW NATIONAL PRESIDENT

The Australian Institute of Management (AIM) welcomes the election of Mr Jim Walker as President of the National Board of the AIM, effective 30 April 2010.

Mr Walker has been President of AIM Western Australia and a Director on the AIM National Board since 2008. He has served on the Board of AIM WA since 2006.

Mr Walker replaces Mr Terry Agnew, Group Chief Executive of RACWA. Mr Agnew was congratulated by the National Board for encouraging a new direction for the collective AIM Divisions to represent AIM members nationally and to enhance the AIM brand.

Mr Walker has been Managing Director of WesTrac Pty Ltd, a Western Australian company with over 3000 employees in WA, NSW, ACT and northern China and has been appointed to the board of the recently merged entity of Seven Group Holdings Ltd.

As one of the largest employers and trainers of apprentices in the country, Mr Walker is a keen advocate of training with a first hand commitment to a range of training programs from apprenticeships to management in his own Company as well as its clients.

Mr Walker said; "I am looking forward to the valuable role as President of the national body of the Australian Institute of Management. AIM Divisions provide a vast range of essential skills training across Australia and in Asia. With over 20,000 members and fellows, AIM has a key role to play in the national debate on the value of management to productivity, growth, and social issues in Australia."
